

10 years of galactically stupid trading failures

Vinny Marchi aka "Vinny Emini"

Vinny Marchi (aka "Vinny e Mini") is a self-proclaimed multi-millionaire day trader who lives in a mansion and everyone else is a fraud. He is arrogant, insulting and regularly proclaims to be fabulously successful at day trading using his algobox. Postings cast serious doubt about his product or state of mind.

By virtue of a series of litigations, convergent serendipity and the fact that he was kicked out of AMP brokerage for various infractions have made his brokerage statements for all three accounts he trades on YouTube available for review, covering the last 10 years, from 2012 to mid-2022. Typical of Vinny he (being Ecclesiastes Global Investment strategies) barely if at all mentions any significant losers when the majority of his trading days, months, and all years were in fact significant losers. Likewise individual review of his brokerage statements reveals discrepancies between his YouTube claims and his actual performance off camera. His worst month was the loss of -$133,160 and his worst losing year was -$249,948. The financial review of all 3 statements reveals a grand total of -$935,754.37 in losses with no winning years, which would definitely fall into the category of galactically stupid.

Over 10 years he has exhibited a lot of fabrications, pompous overtures, fraudulent claims and deceptive behavior. And I suppose if Vinny lost all that money trading the Ecclesiastes trading systems then where did he get it from? My guess would be from selling the Ecclesiastes trading systems and while many of the owners may jump bolt upright, beat their chest and insist they were successful trading the system, it is quite obvious the originator, the author, Kirk the creator could not trade it and all postings about its performance were fraudulent; in my opinion you were misled to say the least. Marcus from Rockwell trading systems actually lost money trading his own system and made all of his profits ($ millions in fact) from selling his system when his trading records were examined in detail in a similar type of lawsuit. Great salesman, another failure as a trader.

And lastly, according to the US Patent and Trademark office the term algobox has not been copyrighted or trademarked at all - there's no record. Shame on you Vinny for lying to us yet again.
